It Was Just a Monday

by Dean Kelly

It was Monday. Oh, yes, in every way it was Monday. No need to go into all that was making it a real Monday, but it had not been fun. I was on the way home from Mobile and I stopped at a rest area to take a break and to try to deal with one of this particular Monday's crises. As I pulled up, it started pouring down rain. I jumped from the truck and headed into the building. My phone was running out of battery power as I made a call I needed to make, and I did not want to make while driving. I realized it was low, and ran out to the truck to get a wall-plug that I had with me (hadn't gotten a car charger yet). As I neared the truck, I reached in my pocket, and stopped right there in the rain. My keys weren't there. I went on and looked in the passenger window, and there in my locked truck, right there in the ignition, were my keys. About an hour and $65.00 later, I had my keys and completed my call.

While I stood for a few minutes letting my phone charge some more, I must have looked pretty perplexed, because a fellow who was walking by said to me, “Whatever is worrying you, just take comfort that you have not just driven 350 miles, one way, to absolutely blow a job interview.” He continued, “I took a 16 hour training course, and practiced and practiced for the interview. The first part went fine, but then it all fell apart. I expect my rejection letter will follow closely behind my return home.” “One lesson I’ve learned – get some rest the night before you have a job interview.” I told him, “Maybe it was not as bad as you feel, and maybe it will be OK.” That was kind of weak, but what else could I say? Actually, I knew the best thing I could do was listen.

Sometimes, we get so lost in our own problems, big or small, that we forget that others around us are trying to make it through Monday, too. I can, however, make it through the Mondays of life. I cannot solve all of the Monday problems on Monday, but many of them can be solved with help from those that I love, those who are my true friends, and above all, with faith in God. I know some Monday problems are beyond “solving.” Those I have to learn to overcome, and to deal with, and to not allow them to dominate my life and my thoughts.

If somebody you know is having a “Monday,” take a minute to listen, and to care. If you are having a “Monday” as you read this, then just settle down, take a deep breath (try not to kill anybody), and look really forward to “Tuesday.” After all, it is just a Monday, and Lord willing, better days lie ahead. “Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and God of all comfort, who comforts us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort those who are in any trouble, with the comfort with which we ourselves are comforted by God” (2 Corinthians 1:3-5).

Drop a Pebble in the Water

Drop a pebble in the water:
Just a splash and it is gone;
But there's half-a-hundred ripples
Circling on and on and on,
Spreading from the center,
Flowing on out to the sea.
And there is no way of telling
Where the end is going to be.

Drop an unkind word, or careless:
In a minute you forget;
But there's little waves a-flowing,

And there's ripples circling yet,
And perhaps in some sad heart
A mighty wave of tears you've stirred,
And disturbed a life once happy
Ere you dropped that unkind word.

Drop a word of cheer and kindness:
Just a flash and it is gone;
But there's half-a-hundred ripples
Circling on and on and on,
Bearing hope and joy and comfort
On each splashing, dashing wave,
Till you wouldn't believe the volume
Of the one kind word you gave.
